Any amendments to the Contract shall be in the form of a written appendix to the Contract and may only refer to those amendments which are not considered material in terms of content and basic elements of the Contract, in line with the regulations governing public procurement. Notwithstanding this provision, in cases provided in - item 7.5. a written appendix to the Contract shall not be necessary.

7.1. The following amendments shall be considered material in terms of this Article:

a) Amendments introducing conditions which, had they been part of the procurement procedure preceding the conclusion of the Contract, would have allowed submitting different tenders than those submitted in the procurement procedure, or the selection of a different tender than the one selected in the procurement procedure;
b) Amendments significantly expanding the scope of the Contract;
c) Amendments modifying the economic balance of the Contract in favor of the Supplier in a manner not envisaged in the Contract;
d) Amendments modifying the contracting party of the selected tenderer, or the Supplier respectively.

7.2. The following amendments to the procurement contract shall not be considered material:

a) Possible amendments to the Contract (in terms of scope and nature, as well as conditions for such amendments), have been provided in the tender documentation in a clear and unambiguous manner, provided that such amendments do not change the legal nature of the Contract;
b) The total value of all amendments is less than 10% of the total contract value, provided that such amendments do not change the legal nature of the Contract;
c) Change of the Supplier has occurred due to legal succession, which is the result of the status change on the part of the Supplier, provided that such succession has not been conducted in order to avoid application of the Public procurement Act and that the economic operator becoming the new contracting party complies with all conditions and requirements provided in the completed public procurement procedure. For the purpose of such change the Contracting entity shall be entitled, before consenting to the change, to request from the Supplier, or the new economic operator respectively, to submit evidence proving that the new contracting party complies with conditions and requirements provided in the public procurement procedure preceding the conclusion of the Contract.

7.3. The contracting party on the side of which circumstances causing amendments to the Contract have arisen, shall immediately submit a proposal for amendment to the counterparty. The proposition shall be made in writing and contain reasons for the proposed amendments. The counterparty shall respond whether they accept the proposed amendments within 10 days from the receipt of the proposal. In case both parties agree on the amendment content, the Contracting entity shall prepare an addendum to the Contract and submit it for signature to the Supplier within 10 days from such agreement or the day of notification thereof.

7.4. In case of need for additional documentation in order to consider the amendment proposal, the contracting party receiving the amendment proposal shall request submitting such documentation. In such case, the deadline for responding to the proposed amendments shall stand still during the period from requesting additional documentation until its receipt and shall continue upon the expiry of such period.

7.5. A written appendix to the Contract for the purpose of changes of lesser importance, such as change of address, bank account or contact details, shall not be required, but one party shall notify in writing the other thereof. The effect of such change shall enter into force upon the receipt of such notice. notify in writing the other thereof. The effect of such change shall enter into force upon the receipt of such notice.

Article 8 Force majeure

Neither of the parties shall be considered to breach the Contract where the performance of their contractual obligations has been prevented by any circumstances pertaining to force majeure occurring after the conclusion of the Contract and before the obligation performance deadline.

The term force majeure used herein means a situation in which the performance of contractual obligations of a contracting party becomes impossible due to extraordinary external events which could not have been predicted, nor could they have been prevented, avoided or eliminated by the party and for which neither of the parties is responsible.

If a contracting party considers that any circumstance of force majeure which may affect the performance of their obligations has occurred, they shall immediately inform the counterparty thereof orally, and in writing within 3 days from the occurrence of such circumstance. Such notice shall contain relevant details about the nature, possible duration and likely effects of the circumstance, and evidence of its occurrence. A contracting party which fails to notify the counterparty shall be liable to the counterparty for any damage they may incur due to such failure. Unless otherwise instructed by the Contracting entity in writing, the Supplier shall continue with the performance of their contractual obligations to the extent possible and shall explore different methods of performing the Contract. The Supplier shall apply a different method of performance only based on the Contracting entity's instruction.

Where the Supplier has incurred additional costs due to the Contracting entity's instruction, they shall be entitled to reimbursement of such costs. The Contracting entity shall approve the requested amount before executing the payment.

Where the circumstances of force majeure exceed 90 days, either party may terminate the Contract by written notice with a notice period of 30 days from the receipt thereof. Where the circumstances of force majeure cease to exist for the duration of the notice period, the Contract shall remain in force. Otherwise, the termination shall enter into force and the contracting parties shall be released from their obligations.
